WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—General Hugh Johnson is quietly working on a new plan for cracking down on code violators.

The present system of local Compliance Boards is to be amplified. Under the new machinery—soon to be announced—a federal officer in each community will be especially designated to supervise code enforcement. The Compliance Board will act as investigation agents.

The long-threatened halting of a big code violator into court is getting closer.

COUNCIL TO ASK CONTROL FOR LIQUOR

A hot, secret battle is raging in the inner council of the Agricultural Department over consumer protection.

CONSUMER PROTECTION

Dr. Frederick C. Howe, liberal Consumers' Counsel, is demanding that a provision be inserted in the master food industries code fixing specified grades and standards for all consumers' goods. J. D. Dole, brother of the pineapple canner and chief of the Food Products Section, is opposed. Secretary Wallace and the Brain Trusters line up with Howe.

Dole contends the canners and food manufacturers will not accept a code containing such a clause. Howe says it is not a question of what they will accept, but what is in the best interest of the public.

ON THE SPOT

Big Jim Farley is on the spot. Holy Joe McKee's defeat in the New York majority race has had a political impact. Of course, if McKee had won, Jim would be receiving acclaim as a wily strategist.

ONE INTERPRETATION

"Mr. Secretary," a reporter asked Henry Wallace, "what do you think of the Farmers' Holiday movement?"

Dinner Held By Red Men At Meeting Here

Onetah Tribe of Redmen entertained last night at an Italian dinner served under the direction of Perasso Brothers at the Redmen hall.

The dinner, which featured ravioli and all the trimmings, was attended by members of the city council, State Printer Harry Hammond, Supervisor J. N. Long, J. A. Miller, chairman of the NRA parade committee; Assemblyman C. C. Anglin, Ernle Woodfield of the NRA compliance board; Mayor Beck of El Cerrito and many others.

The program opened with an accord solo by David Lampert. Assemblyman Clifford C. Anglin then addressed the group on the water bill. Supervisor J. N. Long was the next speaker on the program and he highly lauded Anglin's activities in the assembly.

Musical selections were presented by Crocco and company. John A. Miller, on behalf of the lodge, presented Harry Hammond, state printer, with his membership in the order badge.

Miss Anita Chasseur then entertained with a musical selection. Superior Judge T. D. Johnston closed the program with a talk on the good of the order.

Dancing rounded out the evening. The dinner followed the business meeting of the group at which time plans were made for a turkey shoot which will be held November 23 and 24 at the Redmen hall. John Miller will be chairman of the affair.

The annual Turkey Whist party of the lodge will be held on the evening of November 27. It was stated. R. R. Coady presided last evening.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA: Fair Tuesday and Wednesday. Little change in temperature. Low humidity. Light east to north winds off shore.

COUNCIL TO ASK CONTROL FOR LIQUOR

Liquor control, or the utter lack of it so far as municipalities are concerned was very forcibly brought to the attention of the council at its meeting last evening by Rev. Merl Bish, with the result that City Attorney T. M. Carlson and City Manager J. A. McVittie, were appointed to get in touch with the state board of equalization, and ascertain whether or not a plan could be worked out, so that the local authorities would have something to say in the granting of liquor permits.

Rev. Bish said that under the present state liquor law, counties and municipalities had nothing to say in the granting of permits, but the entire power was placed in the hands of the State Board of Equalization. "It strikes me," said Bish, "that this is a serious situation, and it should be coped with. If the council could pass on these permits, there would be some manner of regulation, those who are not entitled to permits, could be refused them. If the state board would refer all applications to the council, and give this body the power to either approve or reject, it would help out the situation a great deal."

One hope you will consider this matter seriously as it is of vital (Continued on Page 3)

State Will Tax All Hard Liquor

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 13.—UP—A tax of two cents a gallon on 3.2 per cent beer and wine will be extended to hard liquors when prohibition repeal becomes effective December 5, Fred E. Stewart, member of the state board of equalization, said today.

The California Beverage tax act applies to beer and wine that exceeds 3.2 per cent of alcoholic content, Attorney General U. S. Webb ruled. Stewart said the board will apply the act to all liquor on the theory it was adopted not as a tax of alcohol percentage, but as a levy against any kind of alcoholic beverages.

HARTS ASK FOR KIDNAP MEETING

FAMILY TO BE MUM ON CONFERENCE

SAN JOSE, Nov. 13.—UP—A request for ransom negotiations and a pledge of secrecy were given kidnapers of Brooke L. Hart, Santa Clara University graduate by his parents tonight.

Alex J. Hart, department store owner, and Mrs. Nettie B. Hart, who has been prostrated with grief since the 22-year-old youth disappeared last Thursday, issued a joint statement to the press.

They would not say whether they were willing or ready to pay the $40,000 demanded in a telephone message. A friend had suggested they make an offer of $20,000.

The statement was addressed "To the kidnapers of Brooke L. Hart."

It read: "We are anxious for the return of our son Brooke. We desire to negotiate for his return personally or through any intermediary who might be selected. When contact is made we will of course want evidence to prove that Brooke is held by you. All negotiations will be considered confidential by us, and we shall allow no interference from any outside source."

Hart said he had no information as to his son's whereabouts. He said he had not heard from the kidnapers since last Thursday.

He denied that William H. Padst, banker, and Victor Chargin, attorney, both of San Jose, hurried to Los Angeles on an errand connected with Brooke's disappearance.

Beer Permits Are Granted to Three Firms

At the request of Felice and Perelli Canning company, the council last evening gave first reading to an ordinance, which will place the property of the company in fire zone No. 2 instead of No. 1. This action was taken so that the firm could erect a garage on the property, that would comply with the provisions of zone No. 2. The company stated to build a garage according to the provisions of Zone No. 1 would make the cost of the building prohibitive.

Permits to Sell On sale beer permits were granted to E. M. Rogers, 12 Standard avenue, G. Vargas, 1134 Macdonald, and R. Dale and E. Engabo, 575 San Pablo avenue. A soft drink permit was also granted Vargas at the same address as the beer permit.

COUNCILMAN CALLS KEY 'DAM CHEAP'

"I think their action is damn cheap," Imbach.

This remark of the councilman, was brought about when City Manager J. A. McVittie, told the council last evening that the Key system, had notified him, that after December 1st, the power for the pump pumps in the subway would be cut-off. So far as the transportation company is concerned, the subway can fill up with water during the winter.

The city manager also told the council, a protest had been lodged with the company on the character of service given, but as far as it had been ignored.

When the pump pumps, were first installed, the city contributed $300 toward the cost, the transportation company the balance, with an agreement, it was to supply the power, and men to keep the pumps and motors in good condition.

Since the street cars have been taken off, and buses installed, the company is now attempting to hand the city another job.

The company also notified the city, that if some arrangement was not made to purchase the pumping system in the subway, it would remove the outfit. The city manager said the company informed him a letter would be written, asking the city to buy the equity in the equipment.

The statement aroused the ire of most of the councilmen, and the question was asked if keeping the subway dry in winter was not still of importance to the transportation company.

The reply was made, that when street cars were operating, the subway had to be used but buses could be diverted to Barrett avenue.

It was at this stage of the discussion that Councilman Imbach made what was apparently a very appropriate remark, and what seemed to coincide with the opinion of other members, when he said: "I think their action is damn cheap."

In the meantime City Manager McVittie will take measures to protect the traveling public from winter water in the subway.

Oil Rag In Overall Held Cause Of Blaze

An oily rag, stuffed into an overall pocket and placed in a steel locker brought about spontaneous combustion that resulted in a fire at the machine shop of the Richmond Union High school last night. Damage was estimated at $5000.

Several lockers were damaged, and rafters at the east end of the building were badly charred by the blaze.

The damage is covered by insurance, City Superintendent of Schools Walter T. Helms told the RECORD-HERALD last evening. Insurance examiners will be called to the scene this morning to examine the damage.

Machinery in the high school plant was slightly damaged by water.

Water Plan Opposed By State Body

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—UP—The State Chamber of Commerce tonight issued a statement over the signature of C. C. Tague, president opposing the Central Valley Water Project plan in the form it will take on the December 19 referendum election ballot.

The statement was directed to the State Water Plan association which was criticized for unauthorized assertions that the State Chamber urged a "yes" vote on the project.

The State Chamber passed resolutions September 8, 1933, favoring the valley project with the provisions it be financed through government funds and that it place private and publicly owned utilities on an equal basis, the state must said.

It is therefore apparent that (State Chamber) cannot ask its voters to put the seal of their approval on assembly bill 259 as long as that bill contains the above mentioned authorization to expend state funds on the project nor as long as there are provisions in that bill which declare equality shall not exist between privately and publicly owned utilities," the statement said.

CARD 11 IS WELCOMED BY PALO ALTOANS

PALO ALTO, Nov. 13.—UP—All manner of noise-making devices created a din that was heard for several miles today as Stanford welcomed home the football team which beat U. S. C. last Saturday by a 12 to 7 score.

Even the revered Stanford team, usually revered for a Big Game victory over California, was hauled from the moth balls to add its boom to the celebration. Team members and coaches were placed in two hay wagons and hauled from the depot to the university chapel by horses decorated in Trojan colors.

Old timers in Palo Alto declared the celebration eclipsed any outburst of collegiate joy for years.

The game was protested after a ball was ruled a home run. Protestants declared that the ball should have declared foul.

LOCAL CAGERS ARE DEFEATED BY CROCKETT

It was a tough night at Crockett for two local basketball teams making their first start of the season. The "Sugar City" lads won both the unlimited and preliminary contests on their one court last evening by scores of 26 to 11 in the feature game.

The preliminary contest was a loss and found the locals lagging a 29 to 28 decision in the last minute of play.

The Richmond Produce tangled with the C. Y. O. aggregation in the main event while Ben Mallis led to the 145 lb. C. Y. O. group.

Before the Produce could become accustomed to the Crockett track, the court, the Crockett lads assumed a 15 to 2 lead, a lead they kept all through the fight's fourth contest. Sensational shooting from difficult angles by Paul Moltoza and Walter Gordon and splendid defensive work by Barberi and Pifford kept the locals in the fight all half time. The score at this point was 15 to 11 in the "Sugar City" lads' favor.

Immediately after festivities resumed in the third quarter Crockett took advantage of a temporary Richmond lapse and ran the count to 21 to 13.

A few minutes before the start of the final quarter, George Gordon broke the spell for the Produce team and looped one from the other side of the court. It seemed that the locals were finally going places when Paul Moltoza and Barberi rang the hoop from deep center to bring the score at 21 to 19.

Two costly fouls committed at critical moments and both made good ran Crockett's margin to a four point lead four minutes before the final gun. The home team looped another basket right after their second free throw.

When Scarella and Pifford looped the ball through the required enclosure to add to the discomfort of Crockett fans; the home team took time out. Scarella fouled again to give Crockett their final point.

It was the Produce's first game of the season and with the splendid material they have on their roster should be one of the favorites in the coming Richmond Basketball League.

Richmond stars of the game were Paul Moltoza at forward and Carroll Pifford, former St. Mary's star at guard.

In the preliminary contest, Faust and De Pablo played a hard and sensational game for the Ben Mallis.

Veterans Win From Markets In Fast Game

Pop Legault and his rambling Palace Market nine, which has so far been undefeated in the City Winter league, met their Waterloo Sunday in the form of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Dolan, who was on the mound for the Veterans, hurled his team to victory by allowing seven scattered hits and only one run while his teammates were collecting ten hits and 4 runs off the hurling of LeQuatt.

As a result of their victory, the Veterans are feeling twice as confident as Stanford did after beating U. S. C.

The V. F. W. team yesterday declared that no team is unbeatable.

On the other hand, Pop Legault is willing to bet his last shirt and necktie that the Market-ers will come through with victories for the rest of the season.

Law courts in London, it has just been ascertained, have two and one-half miles of corridors.

PG&E ORDERED TO CUT GAS RATE IN AREA

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—UP—The California railroad commission today ordered a $2,122,894 annual reduction in natural gas rates of the Pacific Gas & Electric company.

The reductions are retroactive to July 16, authorizing a refund to consumers of $750,000.

The commission found during its prolonged investigation and arguments that salaries of P. G. & E. executives are excessive. It ordered that higher executive salaries be allowed as operating expenses on the basis of a 40 percent reduction on the 1931 salary level.

The commission found however that rates charged by the firm for artificial gas are not excessive or discriminatory.

Mixing of B. T. U. content gas with low B. T. U. gas from local wells at Sacramento and Stockton was declared unreasonable and discriminatory. The firm was ordered to cease serving such mixed gas after December 15, 1933.

The 60 cent minimum service charge against gas users was abolished outright. Thus it was figured that 11,000 small consumers actually will pay more under the new rates, since the minimum charge was raised to 80 cents.

Some 29,000 consumers using from 300 to 500 cubic feet a month will find virtually no change in their bills. The savings become increasingly apparent however for consumers who use more than that figure.

The commission report said that in general the reduction in rates was accomplished through a finding of a reasonable rate base for the company's natural gas properties of $105,000,000, which is some $13,500,000 less than that urged by the company.

The commission estimated that under the new schedule the firm will earn 6 2-3 per cent upon its reasonable investment in natural gas properties.

The commission rejected as impractical and inequitable a proposal that San Francisco, various East Bay municipalities and San Jose should be given preferential rates.

Cerrito Boy Is Scalded to Death

Funeral services are pending at an Albany funeral home for Billy Golden, 3, who died of scald wounds at an Albany hospital on Sunday morning.

The child, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Golden of El Cerrito, fell into a bucket of scalding water at the Golden home on Saturday evening. He was taken to an Albany hospital for treatment.

The water was being used for scalding milk bottles. Mrs. Golden declared that she was absorbed in other work and that she did not see the child approach the hot water.

Most prominent among Ford's men are Major C. W. Dunning, Deputy Director of Processing and Marketing in the AAA, and George Carlson, chief of Licensing and Enforcement.

For ten years Carlson was Ford's agent in Vienna. Dunning was his assistant. When high tariffs ruined Ford's Austrian business, both men got out. Major Dunning was a credit Hoover booster, went to the Republican Convention in Chicago as a Hoover delegate.

With Roosevelt's election he got a job under the New Deal, immediately hired as his subordinate, his ex-chief Carlson.

POWER INVESTIGATION

The tactics of southern power interests in resisting the Tennessee Valley Authority have aroused President Roosevelt.

At his direction the Federal Trade Commission sent a secret investigator into the region to inquire into power activities. He was under orders to report on a charge that the corporations spent $50,000 in a recent Birmingham, Ala. election to defeat a municipal power proposal.

Knoxville, Tenn. votes on a similar project November 15. Power interests are exerting great efforts to defeat it. Their victory in Birmingham was a setback for the President's hydro-electric development program. The Knoxville fight, therefore, takes on added importance, as a defeat there may necessitate a revision of the Administration's construction plans.

General Electric's Gerard Swann has revised his plan industrial control to replace the NRA.

The outburst of criticism that greeted his scheme was not lost on him. As cunning a politician as he is a business man, the short dynamic industrialist, in his modified plan, gives both government and labor representation, but here is the rub—industry would still be supreme.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

President Roosevelt's favorite policies is "long faced country." Guizot Berzheim, famous laborer. This winter he is building three airplanes, claims he has ideas on a better airplane engine. Add to this Berzheim's ability as a lobbyist in getting an R. F. C. loan for a sea wall at Corpus Christi, Texas, and it is a safe bet he will never be unemployed. Jim Farley spent several hours of the first day upon his return to his desk following the New York election reading "pamphlet" letters. He answered each one in a peculiar vein. Mildred Reeves, highly efficient secretary of the late Speaker Nicholas, is worth a look working for the New Deal as assistant to Deputy Administrator H. O. Kins of the NRA.

MAIL BAG

I. G. Dayton, Ohio. General Hermann Goering's violent hatred for Communists is attributed in German quarters to an incident that occurred shortly after the Armistice. Goering, a German ace, had returned to Berlin and was walking up Unter den Linden, when he encountered a group of revolutionary sailors. They surrounded him, tore off his cap and decorations and slapped his face. He has never forgotten or forgiven this affront.

Yellow Cab Chief Is In Conference

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 12.—W. Lansing Rothschild, president of the Yellow and Checker Cab company, today is en route to Washington, D. C. where he will meet with seven other taxi company executives to form a national taxicab code.

He was appointed along with the seven others by the National Taxicab Association. The appointments were approved by Deputy Administrator Malcolm Muir of the NRA.

Unfair competition in the form of cut rates below operating costs will probably be the chief topic of discussion, Rothschild said.

NEW SVOPE PLAN

General Electric's Gerard Swann has revised his plan industrial control to replace the NRA.

The outburst of criticism that greeted his scheme was not lost on him. As cunning a politician as he is a business man, the short dynamic industrialist, in his modified plan, gives both government and labor representation, but here is the rub—industry would still be supreme.

Oakland May Oust Carr As City Manager

OAKLAND, Nov. 13. In a stormy session the city council this afternoon, by a vote of five to four, passed to print an ordinance discharging City Manager Ossian E. Carr.

Those voting for the ouster were Councilmen George Fitzgerald, James L. Graham, James De Paoli, Alex Arlett and James Quinn. Those opposing were Mayor W. J. McCracken, Herbert L. Beach, Walter Jacobsen and John E. Slavich.

Final passage of the ordinance can not take place for eight days, and even then Carr can not be ousted until he is given an opportunity to defend himself in a public hearing. He is at present en route to Washington on orders of the Council to attend a Civil Works Administration conference to secure Federal funds for Oakland public works.

Body of Drowned Man is Identified

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—Identification of a body found floating in the surf near Seal Rocks Saturday night as Alexander S. Carruthers, former member of the Democratic State Committee and secretary of the Progressive Democratic League of Napa County, had been made today.

Letters to relatives indicated that Carruthers feared paralysis after being confined in the Napa Hospital suffering injuries incurred in an auto accident.

Island Governor Arrives in U. S.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. Governor Robert B. Gore, of Puerto Rico, arrived today on the steamer Borinquen for treatment of a kidney ailment. He was amused at question regarding legalization of cockfighting.

He likened his act to repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, saying that with the anti-cockfighting law on the books everyone staged a fight in his backyard.

Governor Gore will go to Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, for an examination.

KING ASKING REMOVAL OF AMBASSADOR

HAVANA, Nov. 13. UP—A revolt of three hundred men who concentrated at the village of Aguamonte in the Mantanzas province was reported from Mantanzas today by Radio de la Habana.

Government military forces continued a battle to bring interior cities into line with the federal government. A report from Santa Clara said troops took over the local government of five towns in Santa Clara province.

Operations against oppositionists in the towns of Pataira and Cienfuegos in the same province and in Limonia, continued.

A bomb explosion here tonight did slight damage to the Atenas negro club.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. UP—A request that Sumner Welles be withdrawn immediately as United States ambassador to Cuba was made at the state department today by Senator W. H. King, Democrat, of Utah.

King, calling at the state department personally, said Welles should be replaced immediately and that the United States should recognize the San Marti government of Cuba.

The State Department reluctantly admitted that King had sharply criticized Welles' handling of the Cuban situation and had said that continuation of the present policy in Cuba was increasing the danger that the United States would have to intervene actively.

The Utah senator was given no promises. State Department officials listened to his complaint and agreed to "give the matter consideration."

King has long been a severe critic of United States policy in Cuba. Two years ago he submitted a memorandum to President Hoover and Henry L. Stimson, then secretary of state, demanding that the United States "do something" about the tyranny of the Machado regime in Cuba.

Last week he called upon President Roosevelt to give Cuba a "new deal" in United States ambassadorships.

R. F. C. Loan Quiz Is Under Way

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Motivated by complaints, the Senate banking committee in its recent examination of Jesse H. Jones was said by one of its members today to have asked him about a loan the R. F. C. made to the Midland Mortgage Company of Texas, and whether he was interested in it.

The Reconstruction Agency chairman, it was said, informed the committee this company was operated by his brother and that he had no connection with it.

Lindy at Le Bourget

ONE OF the first things Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh did, when he and Mrs. Lindbergh recently arrived in Paris after their flight from Scotland was to take Mrs. Lindbergh to Le Bourget airport to show her the spot where he landed at the end of his historic transatlantic flight in 1927. They are shown at the airport with French officials.

FOX VERSION NORRIS NOVEL AT FOX TODAY

Sally Eilers with Norman Foster to cast in the leading masculine role opposite her, comes to the Fox theater today in "Walls of Gold," the new Fox film production, taken from Kathleen Norris' best selling novel of the same name. It is scheduled for an engagement of two days.

The action of the picture moves from the smart spectacles and their flip repartee to the quiet of country beauty, and back again to luxurious Long Island homes and Europe's watering places. There is an accompanying social whirl and free living that tangles the hearts of the principals.

In "The Walls of Gold," Kathleen Norris shifts her pen to the problem that has troubled so many of our modern maidens—whether to accept love unquestioningly, or to take the matrimonial offer of the highest bidder.

The young girl in the story is faced with such a question, in a moment of weakness she succumbs to the offer of a millionaire, and so angers the man who loves her. In resentment, he marries her younger sister. Heartbroken over the young man's impetuous marriage, she wed the millionaire, only to find that ease and luxury do not in themselves spell happiness. It is then that she realizes she has shut herself off with walls of gold from a romance she has always desired.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD—UP—Memories of a great singer, by Enrico Caruso, Jr.

"My dad smoked 60 cigars a day. It didn't hurt him because he knew how to take care of his throat. Each morning he inhaled a special preparation he had, and it cleaned his lungs."

"His cigars were just one long smoke. He used a holder stuffed with cotton for a sieve. The cotton was changed three or four times a day. His valet used to wait in the wings with a lighted cigar and dad would take a puff between entrances."

"He was a big eater, but he had only one meal a day. That was after the opera. A singer can't eat before his performance because a full stomach puts pressure on the diaphragm and prevents good resonance."

Young Caruso, who is studying voice and who is now preparing for his motion picture debut, has many happy memories of his great father and a few sad ones.

He can never forget the performance of Samson and Delilah at the Metropolitan in 1919 when the scene temple crashed down on Caruso's back.

"A corner of the scenery struck him under the lower rib," he said. "It caused an inflammation, but dad wouldn't stop work. Finally he had to quit and go to Italy. I thought he was getting well, but one night he grew worse. The doctor came up to Sorrento from Rome. He decided to take dad back for an operation—he had no instruments with him. On the way back the inflammation broke, peritonitis set in and my father was gone. Al well perhaps it was for the best. The world remembers him in his greatest glory, and that is something."

Enrico Junior is studying voice under Adolfo de la Huerta, former president of Mexico. Soon he will be making musical pictures for Warner Brothers, the first to be in Spanish.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. With the possible exception of that done in early morning hours, riding in Central Park is about as invigorating and as stimulating as a glass of beer without any foam. The country is there to be sure, but the bridal path is covered with a permanent cloud of automobile exhaust.

To ride smoothly in the saddle as if you were part of the horse is altogether too difficult, unless you are used to riding before audiences. Nursemaids with their tiny charges scream out "Get an automobile!" just as they once heckled the pioneer motorists with the snapper, "Get a horse!"

We hopped in the saddle yesterday morning and took our first ride over the Rotten Row of Central Park. Loafers leaned idly over the bridges and suffused as we passed underneath them, doing our damnest to effect an air of nonchalance. Office girls en route to their daily chores paused to watch, thinking perhaps that we were a millionaire playboy out for his morning romp.

Anxious to appear the dashing equestrian for the girls, we made old Dobbin step on the gas and give it all he had. We doffed the hat and waved just as the hero does in the movies when suddenly something went wrong and we found ourselves draped around a tree trunk. The horse, a few yards up the path, looked back and whinnied triumphantly.

He had an expression on his face which said, "Phoony on you, you phony! That's what you get for showing off."

***

In Old Knickerbocker you could have knocked us over with a ten-ton truck last night when this announcement came out of the loudspeaker:

"You are now listening to the Knickerbocker heel-bee!"

They're On Forever

The election is over, thank heavens, and the streets of the city are once again peaceful and quiet. Those harsh, screeching ballyhooing wagons of the candidates no longer tear down the boulevards.

role of an Indian. Six months ago in Dallas he was a Greek. At Balboa, California, he was a Hawaiian. A versatile gentleman, what?

Big Town Hicks

"Will your liniment remove corns?" queried a well-dressed city slicker in a Chesterfield, derby and spats.

"Remove 'em over night!" replied the Barker with conviction.

The young man handed over his dollar and departed beaming. Bottle after bottle disappeared like that. Why, we ask you, do New Yorkers talk back, line and snicker for such an old racket which has been exposed more than Sally Rand?

Running Rings Around 'Em

Shades of John L. Sullivan and Bob Fitzsimmons—the society writers are raving about the perfectly "lucky" time a group of social lights had at a recent "scavenger hunt." They go on to say that Gene Tunney, the heavyweight champ, almost made the first prize.

The social butterflies ransacked the Southampton countryside in search of all sorts of queer things, such as automobile tires, coats, hot iron fish, iron dogs and what not. Mr. Tunney, stinking merrily along with the rest of the pack, acquitted himself nobly. Gene, how could you?

While lighting his pipe, Thomas Dixon, of Brighthelm, England, set fire to his beard, and has died from the burns.

ROMANCE FOR TWO

by LAURA VITRAY

Jim and Mary Tibbett, just married, arrive in New York, where Jim, a young vacuum salesman, has been transferred to take a job in the company's main office. They meet Bob Hawkins, son of the company's president, and Flora Fauna, a chorus girl. When Bob and Flora suddenly decide to get married, Jim aids them in overcoming the opposition of Bob's father, and he himself wins the favor of the elder Mr. Hawkins. Meanwhile, Bob has staged a wedding party which, to help Jim, he turns into a publicity stunt for the vacuum company, getting orders for Jim from all his merry-making guests.

JIM now stood high in the regard of both the president of the company and his son. He felt confident he would also win the approbation of the general manager, Dick Taylor, when he handed him those seventy-five orders for vacuums on Monday. In this expectation, however, he was due for a disappointment.

Taylor took the seventy-five order blanks with a grunt and leafed them over. He had been reading the accounts of Bob's edifying support in the Sunday papers, which also ran the pictures, and it is possible he was displeased that he had not been invited to attend.

"Of course these slips are just a joke," he said, his lip curling. "The newspapers kidded us about the whole thing! What's this thing they call a love-lorn stunt to sell our vacuums? You must be crazy! It makes us a laughing stock!"

He flung the handful of orders in the waste basket, and turned on Jim viciously.

"How are your real sales ideas coming along? Thought up anything really worth while? Or has there been too much night life and partying?"

JIM vaguely wished that an earthquake might occur just then. None did. It occurred to him that Taylor might be right about those orders, though certainly Bob had acted in the best of faith.

"Any new prospects for sales?" Taylor kept on hammering at him.

"Certainly, sir. Very—interesting prospects."

"Interesting, eh? Well, that's more than your own are! You're fired!"

"What did you say, sir?"

"I say you're out—don't think you can do any more."

"But—the president of the company, sir—promised me a promotion!"

He did, eh? Well, I'm running the end of the company's affairs. Wait—I'll write him my reasons for this. You may as well hear the rest. A moment later, Betsie appeared.

"Hello, Jim!" she said. And to Taylor: "Did you ring?"

Yes, here, Betsie, take a letter to President Tibbett. Of course I realize that Tibbett has rendered some service to your son, by introducing him to the lady he has just married. Holy smoke, who cares? He helped that young sap get himself married to a chorus girl, and for that I suppose we owe him a life pension? "This is a business we're running, not a matrimonial agency! Now get this: I am convinced that this young fellow's crazy actions and darn fool sales ideas would bring this company to ruin. I am sure you will concur with my decision to let him go."

Jim was aghast. "But, Betsie! He's not half as crazy as you are!" Betsie declared.

SHE flounced out of the room. Jim positively smiled as he stepped out after her, closing the general manager's door. It was the Irish in Jim that made him smile when he ought to have been sad.

He started for the elevator, but Betsie stopped him.

"Where you off to, Jim?"

"To look for another job."

"Why, what's the matter with this one?"

"Now, Betsie! 'Stick around awhile. You're taking me out to lunch. Wait till I type this letter.'"

"Well—okay."

Betsie made her fingers fly. She had just finished the letter when Mr. Hawkins walked in. Seeing Jim, he started toward him, but before the two men had a chance to speak, Betsie jumped up.

"Oh, good morning, Mr. Hawkins," she said. "I have a letter here I was just about to mail to you. It's urgent. Perhaps you would prefer to read it now."

Mr. Hawkins took it from her. He read it, and his face turned a dark red.

"We'll be—!" He stopped short, anything really worth while? Or has there been too much night life and partying?"

Jim just stood and stared. A long time since, he'd made the discovery he could not understand things of women.

He was still staring when Taylor called him in. Mr. Hawkins passed him the letter to read.

"Did Mr. Taylor dictate this in your presence?" he asked.

Jim glanced at it, though he knew what it contained.

"No, sir. He dictated nothing like this, sir!"

Mr. Hawkins suddenly guffawed. "Taylor, you've got your hands full with that little vixen out there. Better marry her to get rid of her! She's a great little practical joker! But Tibbett saved your neck this time—so how about saving him?"

Taylor looked hard at Jim.

"Tibbett—my hand on it!" he said.

Your Good HEALTH

By CLAUD N. CRIGG, M.D.

Some Health Obstacles Are Caused by Fear and Ignorance

MANY conditions of health are influenced by our mental reactions. We can influence ourselves into a state of almost total physical collapse, or by our state of mind overcome many of our ailments. We can be just as foolish and unreasonable as the other. We have a pain in the abdomen and commence to wonder if it is appendicitis, or gall stones, or cancer. We worry and fret till we think our pain has become unbearable and we are seriously sick.

THERE is the parent whose child has a fever and sore throat and refuses to eat and who says, "Oh, he is not sick. When told his child has diphtheria and should be given a dose of anti-toxin, or he might die, he says, "Oh, I don't believe all that. He will be all right tomorrow." Both are equally foolish and are working against their own good health and that of others.

I SAY to those who do not believe in preventive medicine, "All right for you personally, but because of your convictions, but do not force a child who has no say in the matter to suffer because of your notions. We all know persons who endure semi-invaluable and who do not go to the doctor for fear he will find something serious the matter with them. They don't seem to realize that if their trouble is what they think it is, it will only get worse and may become incurable if neglected."

I KNOW one man who spent years suffering with pains in his stomach. He feared his trouble was ulcer of the stomach and tell them it wasn't hurt. The baking soda to overcome what he considered an excess of acid. He finally was forced to go for relief to a physician, who found that instead of having an ulcer, his stomach he had practically no acid. A few drops of dilute hydrochloric acid soon relieved his distress. He had suffered just as much pain as though he had ulcers.

THEN we have the one who won't go to a physician for fear he may find that he has a cancer or Bright's disease. Others will not go because the physician may say they need an operation. They say, "I'll die before I submit to an operation," and they may do it. They never saw a surgical operation, but they have heard stories from those who know as little as they and believe them instead of their doctor who knows more.

I HAVE had many persons say to me after an operation was done and they were well and ready to go home, "Is that all there is to an operation. Why, I have suffered lots worse than that, before the operation, many times." Many say, "I'll not have my child operated. I know of so many that have lost their arms and have died from vaccination. No, sir!" On inquiry they have heard these things, they have never seen them. Also, they refuse to allow the use of anti-toxin, "too many children die of it." They never saw a death from anti-toxin, but they had heard of such a thing.

THERE is the mother, who says, "Nancy, don't go, your feet wet or you will have to go to the doctor." So the child considers the doctor a form of punishment. They ask them to the dentist to have a tooth pulled and tell them it won't hurt. The child believes his mother and blames the dentist for the pain. Children are very likely to act and believe as their parents act. I often tell mothers, "If you will keep your own face cheerful and do not shudder, your baby will take castor oil and lick the spoon." Frequently they acknowledge I was right.

PREJUDICE and faith in the unreliable stories of those who know nothing make one of our greatest obstacles to the health of the nation.

Worthwhile Hints

Keep your sandwiches moist by wrapping them in lettuce leaves, and eat the two together.

A rice pudding is much improved by adding a little corn flour—a good dessertspoonful to a quart of milk.

Discolored clothes will be whitened by dissolving one teaspoonful of cream of tartar in a quart of cold water and putting the clothes in overnight to soak.

NICE FOREHEAD WILL BEAUTIFY THAT NEW HAT

By JACQUELINE HUNT

HAVE you been shopping for hats lately? Aren't they adorable? Gay, chic and daring in their tilt and the way they pop way down over one eye—

I wonder if they could be so lovely if they were not for the number of letters I've had lately about foreheads? Coiffures that dip or dart forward in curls or bangs and down-in-the-front hats seem to have given some of you the idea that you could neglect your forehead and get away with it.

Can't you see how silly that is? Unusual hair arrangements or unusual hats are all the more lovely and striking when the bit of forehead that shows through is flawless. Besides foreheads are still pretty much exposed when your hat is off.

You probably started neglecting your forehead when you were acquiring a suntan last summer. The skin became dried out and leathery and perhaps smothering little lines put in their appearance. Check up on the area around your eyes and forehead now and start treatments to restore the suppleness of your skin. Promptly lines may be prevented from becoming wrinkled, and wrinkles may be softened by intelligent daily care.

Massage and nourishing creams are usually sufficient to eradicate the fine lines and over-care the dryness and roughness. Cleanse the skin thoroughly and finish by smoothing a liberal amount of nourishing cream over the forehead and around the eyes. Place the tips of your fingers at the ends of the eyebrows, work them slowly and firmly upward and outward to the temples. Lift the fingers and repeat five times. Now place the fingers in the center of the eyebrows and work them up to the hair line. Repeat. Then massage from the bridge of the nose up to the hair line.

Do not move the fingers down but lift them when you reach the ends of the eyebrows and return to the starting point and repeat. Massage the area over the eyes from the inside corner out to the temples. Use light circular strokes. Put a bit of cream on the fingers and massage the area under the eyes. When the area has been covered remove all excess nourishing cream and pat on a skin tonic to aid in toning the skin.

If the lines on the forehead are deep you should use strips of gauze wet in the white of an egg to keep the skin stretched smooth. Leave on overnight and remove in the morning with warm water. Cleanse thoroughly and use a gentle astringent before applying your make-up.

ANSWER TO QUERY

Dear Miss Hunt: I am a Japanese young man, twenty-eight years old, height 5 feet, 10½ inches and weigh 140 pounds. I have black hair, fairer than the average Japanese complexion with gentle habits and manners. Please tell me what colors are best for informal suits, shirts and neckties with the view of setting off my complexion to the best advantage. K. C. T.

Answer: How pleasing it is to have a letter from someone who is proud of his complexion! Most young men and women of other nationalities write me asking how they can change the color of their skins. I suggest you select your business suits in some tone of gray or a dark blue with a very small inconspicuous stripe. Gray especially in lighter shades, is best for you since the contrast will make your complexion all the more striking. Brown is possible but it is much better for a fair-skinned man with golden lights in his hair or a ruddy complexioned man.

White and gray are the best colors for dressy shirts, but you may wear pale blue or very soft green if you choose. Neckties in red or maroon, either plain or with a simple pattern and all blues plain or combined with other colors are excellent choices for white, blue or pale gray shirts. If you wear a pale green shirt, then choose a green, black and white patterned or a blue and green printed necktie.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "How should a man dress for an informal dance? How should the girl dress?"—J. H.

ANSWER: The man should wear a dark business suit and the woman should wear a formal afternoon dress or a Sunday night dress.

Tasty Dishes for Today

COOKING CHEAP CUTS OF BEEF

By JUDITH WILSON

MILLIONS of families are finding that their incomes cannot keep pace with rising prices in spite of NRA and the prospect of better times. Housewives in such homes will be delighted to learn that a great deal has been discovered that will help them keep their budgets low and at the same time serve menus that breathe no hint of economy.

Meat is always the biggest item on the food budget and when it can be substantially reduced you have gone a long way toward achieving balance. There are tricks that will make chuck or round steak taste like a sirloin, and still cheaper cuts can be made into meat dishes that are unusually good and nourishing.

One hears a great deal of objection to the cheaper cuts on the ground that they are so much trouble to prepare and require so much heat in the cooking that in the long run it is almost as cheap to buy the more expensive cuts in the first place. This is not necessarily true. There are tricks where meat is concerned just as there are with other things in cooking.

Choosing Beef Cuts Success in cooking the cheap cuts begins with your choice of beef. Beef is graded according to the way the animal was fed and cared for before it reached the market, and the highest grades bring the highest prices. But the cheap cuts from a high grade beef will give you results that would be impossible with the care of low grade beef. You can judge the quality of the meat pretty well by looking at it.

Good beef is a good red in color, velvety and fine-grained with fat of a creamy white liberally distributed among the connective tissues and muscle fibers so the cut surface has a "marbled" appearance. There should be very little gristle and the bone should be pinkish and porous.

Quick Cooking Now the matter of quick cooking. Get a slice of steak from the top round or get a full slice of round steak and take out the tenderest part. You can have the butcher score the meat deeply with his "cubing" machine or you can score the surface of the steak lightly with a sharp knife or you can run it through the meat grinder and make meat patties or "hamburgers." The object is to cut completely or partially the long tough fibers and tissues.

Grapes In Season Have you seen and been tempted by the amazing array of grapes of all colors sizes and shapes? Then you will like this fruit salad it takes the place of dessert, too made of diced pears and several kinds of grapes. Mix one and one-half cups diced

New York. There's a tune for every occasion, and some that even make their own. Cherut and this one over, its plaid velvet very gay, don't you think?

If you keep your proportions in mind, you can wear a tune, since they can be cut any length. Some show only about six inches of the skirt or top beneath, and others do not even go as far as the knee.

Chinese Mode Another trend type has its inspiration from the Chinese, and is threaded with metal in Chinese motifs and in the colors peculiar to them. Tunes being flattered to mature figures, and tunes being sympathetic with the Chinese idea, makes this particular phase of the mode of special interest and value to women who aim for dignity and for charm in their apparel rather than in the more spectacular style items.

Dainty In Lace It may be that the role of bride's mother, or mother of the groom, or in which case you won't please consider looking identified. It may be done by wearing lace, as a dress or a trimming. Let me remind you that it is "lacy" hair net or lace, therefore stiff enough to accommodate itself to the occasion and to the current style picture.

From far and near comes word that wild blackberry which not escapes much of the fashion's preference to black. Not that hosts of smart women will not wear black, but you know how it is when something really new comes out of a matter of fact, all the rich, dark shades are good for evening, especially in lace and velvet.

The "vintage" shades are steadily accepted. In fact, day and evening wear, in various shades, purple tones, and the most colorful, appeared in woolens, silks and velvets.

Home-Making

By ALICE STERN

Are your pictures hung correctly? Here are some pointers on picture hanging: Whether etching, print, water-color, or oil painting, and regardless of size, try to hang without wires showing. If cord must be used it should match the color of the walls. If a wall is covered with patterned paper in which several colors appear, the cord should match the least conspicuous of these colors, rather than carry out a note of accent. If pictures are hung with visible cords or wires, the books should be disguised in some way, behind a rosette, or behind some metal ornament designed especially for this purpose, as a finishing touch. Pictures should be hung low enough, so that it is not a strain to look at them.

Make mats for use under flower pots from old but unworn parts of oilcloth or linoleum.

The Last of the Empire Builders ... Admiral Guepratte Saves a Ship

AMONG the last of a rapidly vanishing group of empire builders is Col. John S. Dennis, who did so much to help transform the prairies of Western Canada from a buffalo pasture and a fur-trapping hinterland into a thriving section of famous and prosperous cities.

When Col. Dennis went west from his native Toronto in 1872, he was only 16 years old. Then the only land settlement for 2,000 miles between Fort Garry, now Winnipeg, and Vancouver was Portage la Prairie. He obtained work "packing" a chain on a government land survey, and across the prairies and overhauled a band of hostile Indians who were bent on driving the white invaders from their lands. By 1877 he had won his degree as a civil engineer and went to work for the Hudson Bay Company, which at that time controlled all the land between the Great Lakes and the Rocky Mountains.

In 1885, when Louis Riel, the half-breed, organized the "Reds" and fur-trappers in a rebellion, Dennis raised a company of men which became known as Dennis' Scouts and with this group he performed valuable service for the government in subduing the rebels. He was personally cited for bravery in the Battle of Batoche, where the Riel rebellion was crushed.

As an engineer Col. Dennis was later called on to reconstruct the irrigation works in Southern Alberta. Recognizing the possibilities in transforming millions of acres of worthless land between the Rockies and the Saskatchewan river into fertile farms by irrigation, Dennis, in 1902, prepared a report covering an area of nearly 100,000 square miles. Railroad interests saw in the Dennis report and hired him to supervise the gigantic irrigation project.

In reclaiming 600,000 acres of farm land, Dennis claimed the Boy Scouts of Canada, and the Canadian and the great Bessie Dam today stands as a monument to his efforts. The country which it waters is larger than the irrigated regions of either Colorado or California and the canals and ditches are more than 3,000 miles long.

MOST of us know the stories of great soldiers in the World War and some who are interested have learned of naval heroes. Among the latter none covered himself with more glory or became more idolized by his countrymen, than the Norman-Breton sea-leader, Admiral Guepratte. His was the unusual distinction of spending over eight years in a figure of legend, after a lifetime spent in a quiet pursuit of his duty.

Guepratte's claim to fame concerns his heroic feat of boarding a sinking vessel under fire in the Dardanelles, and the capture of the Bouvet, a German ship, which had been a crushing defeat into orderly retreat. He was wearing the retirement age when the war broke out. In February 1915, he was appointed chief of the Dardanelles fleet to aid the British fleet in command of Admiral Carden.

The French ships attempting to blockade the Straits were the Suffren, Gaulois, Chamois, and Bouvet. Admiral Guepratte was aboard the Suffren, when that ship with the Gaulois and the Bouvet participated in the determined Allied effort to break through on February 19, 1915. The Turks, however, directed by German officers, had organized a model defense which punished the attackers severely. Besides batteries of 77 mm. guns the defenders raked the French ships whenever possible with machine-gun fire directed from hidden trenches close to the water's edge.

Despite the heavy fire, the French ships succeeded in protecting the minesweepers, whose perilous work was necessary for the protection of the ships in the Dardanelles Straits. On the 17th of March, the Allied Command, having determined to break through to the Black Sea at all costs. At a council Guepratte asked to be given the vanguard job. On the following day, the French ships Bouvet, the mine and artillery unit to steam up the Straits and bombard the forts at close range. The terrific counterfire from the forts did not stop the four French ships, but a mine sank the Bouvet with all hands.

At about this time the Gaulois came under the concentrated artillery fire from the forts and its bow was opened. French and British torpedo boats stood by ready to save the crew, every man of whom stood on deck restrained from abandoning ship by the heroic captain, Commander Bizard. It was uncertain whether or not he would have been able to maintain order at the psychological moment, a longboat hove alongside of the sinking Gaulois, a single called out "Aux Champs" (to battle) and Admiral Guepratte climbed to the sinking ship's deck. Every man fell into line, then, ready to go down with the ship.

HOME USUALLY MIRRORS YOUR INDIVIDUALITY

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

LISTENING in to a discourse on interior decorators, and professionally decorated interiors has started me off on one of my own pet hobbies—home and what it expresses and means.

What your home says to those who enter it. What secrets your home inadvertently tells about those who live in it. For homes naturally do all of these things. They are a little bit of you and cannot help but reflect something of your personality unless, said one of the women in the discussion, "they have been done by a decorator."

WELL, if the decorator has done right by our client, by which we mean by understanding her, there is no reason why a professionally decorated home should be undesirable. It might, of course, be right in every detail but still have no relationship at all with the woman who is to live in it. We naturally prefer to dominate our rooms than to have them dominate us. No more pathetic spectacle can be found than simple souls burdened with and buried under grandeur.

THERE may be occasion when the touch of an interior decorator would be for preferable to the personal touch, as for instance in more or less public rooms, where people are forever coming and going and, where correctness of detail is preferable to intimacy, no matter how charming. A knowledge of color values is no safer guide than color instinct, neither is it as rare.

BUT your own private and particular room—could you possibly bear having someone else "do" it for you? Wouldn't you rather have it less perfect perhaps, but more wholly and completely and satisfactorily your own? It has been very properly said, that "a room should reveal to whom it belongs."

ELEANOR B. STOCK writing in Independent Woman said that and a good deal more besides, including this: "This room of my own takes its emotional overtones from me and then throws them back upon my acts and thoughts and dreams. I have been in rooms that are restful and strained as the tense and irritable people who live in them. It is possible to feel the anger stored in rooms that have been the scenes of petty quarrels. Let me remember to bring my room reverently. I want it to have an atmosphere of peace and serenity and spiritual cleanliness. It must be free from the dust of the mind as well as the dust of the street. Each time I enter it I shall try and leave the haste, the tension, the worry, and the pettiness of the crowded day, and the noisy market place, on the other side of the door. My room shall hold the laughter of my soul, to spite the tears life asks for toll."

IT WOULD be splendid of course, if we could keep to our ideals in rooms as in other things, but unfortunately, rooms the people may be disturbed and temporarily disordered. Fortunately this does not affect the room's charm of color or balance, although it might easily be disturbing to the ultra sensitive.

WHETHER we are clever or cunning enough to build our homes in our own image, we seem to unconsciously do it. That is, those of us who "shun" the "last word" in decoration and cling with great affection plus appreciation to old familiar things. A long time ago, this column told of a visiting architect, seeing the home of two of his women friends able to tell at once which home belonged to which friend. This even though there had been some deception worked on him in order to make a test case of his perceptions. "This couldn't be your house," said he, "and that simply couldn't be hers," whereupon every one concerned felt immensely pleased and flattered. Praise from Sir Hubert is praise indeed.

CHARITY RACE PERMIT GIVEN KENNEL CLUB

On a motion by Councilman Peter Larsen, seconded by Councilman Hans M. Nissen, the council of El Cerrito at its meeting Monday night granted a permit to the El Cerrito Kennel club to conduct a race meeting on Sunday, November 26th.

Under the conditions in the permit El Cerrito will receive thirty-five percent of the net proceeds with a guarantee of $700 to be used for charities. The race meeting must start between two and three in the afternoon. The other 65 percent will be donated to other county charities.

Larsen said he was against granting a permit for racing on the evening as it interfered with church services. He thought Sunday afternoon would be just as satisfactory.

Councilman Phil A. Lee reported that John J. Jerome of the track said all employees would donate their time and the dog owners the services of the dogs but it would be impractical to conduct the meet in the afternoon.

The vote on the motion granting the permit was ayes Councilman Larsen, Nissen and Mayor J. R. Beck, noes, W. P. Huber and Lee.

A communication from the Fairmont P. T. A. says that under their constitution they could not sponsor or dispense the money received from the race meeting as suggested by the council last week.

Awarding of the contract for supplying the city with gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil, oil and asphalt was laid over one week for further consideration.

Bids were received from the Shell Oil company and the Union Oil company.

City Clerk Fred J. Prosser reported the following balances in the various funds on hand November 1st: General fund $542.45; Street Improvement fund $1014.85 and the fire bond fund of $687.54.

Fines of $334.50 for traffic violations and of $347 for violations of city ordinances were collected by Police Judge A. G. Thompson during the month of October.

City Building Inspector A. A. Arnesen reported seven building permits issued during October with a valuation of $1995.

On the recommendation of Councilman W. F. Huber the council ordered a telephone installed in the office of the city engineer H. D. Chapman at a cost of $555, and monthly rental charge of $3.45.

Report of Councilman W. F. Huber that he had received complaints against all night dances being held in the city, was referred to Chief of Police R. R. Cheek to check up on the ordinance and see if the ordinance was being complied with.

City Attorney T. H. DeLap was instructed to find out what regulation the city had over the operation of the buses through the city as Mayor J. R. Beck complained they were traveling entirely too fast.

Lumber Code Is Object Of Court Action

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 13.—UP—An injunction was asked in Federal court today against the lumber code authority to prevent it from restricting working hours and output in what was considered an indirect attack on constitutionality of the NRA.

Suit was filed by the Willamette Valley Lumber company of Dallas, Ore. Named as defendants the directors of the West Coast Lumber Men's association, administrative agency for the NRA lumber code in the Northwest, and Carl G. Dananah, P. O. attorney for Oregon.

The suit was a result of refusal of the code authority in Washington D. C., on Nov. 3, to grant an appeal to the company which would allow it to operate two shifts in excess of 120 hours a month.

Today's suit alleged the restriction of operation of the company was "in such a way as to be un-economic."

It further alleged the NRA permits the administrative agency to restrict operation of the mill in such a way as to constitute seizure of property without due process of law.

ROLPH MAY CALL VOTE ON RUM TAX

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 13.—UP—Governor James Rolph Jr., said today he was considering calling a special election this winter to submit to the voters a new liquor control and taxation measure to endorse the present constitutional amendment.

He said he was seeking suggestions from members of his cabinet and from advisers.

The governor indicated he would like to propose a less stringent system of liquor regulation that would impose a tax on the present laws he feels, would be almost impossible to enforce.

The election would cost approximately $200,000, but the chief executive said revenue from liquor taxation would soon make up the expense.

The proposal could not be voted upon at the December 19 election, when fate of the huge Central Valley water project will be determined, because it is now too late to place the new measure on the ballot.

Unless a new system of taxation is endorsed, the state board of equalization plans to extend to hard liquor the present 10 per cent tax on 3.2 per cent wine and beer.

importance to the people of this city. I ask you to take steps to work out a plan, that will give this body some measure of control. I believe your city attorney can possibly give you some information on the matter."

"The situation in the state at the present time, so far as the sale of liquor is concerned," said City Attorney T. M. Carlson, "is that wines and beers can be sold in restaurants, eating houses, clubs and hotels, and that hard liquors can be sold in any place of business for outside consumption, by merely securing a permit from the state board. Rev. Bish has discussed this matter with me and I believe that the state board would listen to a suggestion, along the lines he has just made. Under the present state law, there is no such thing as local option, any store keeper, drug store, butcher, baker, or in fact any businessman, can secure a liquor permit, unless he has been convicted of a felony."

Then followed the action of the council, taken on the motion of Councilman A. B. Hinkley, that the two city officials, above named ascertain what could be done with the situation.

"I HAPPEN to be one of the men who buy Turkish tobacco for Chesterfield.

"Our men live in Constantinople, Samsoun, and Smyrna in Turkey; and Cavalla, Serres, Xanthi, and Patras in Greece. The best known Turkish tobaccos come from these sections, and we try to select the best grades for Chesterfield.

"There is no other tobacco just like Turkish—it has a taste and aroma all its own. Chesterfield seasons them just right.
